Narita Airport Hosts ACI Asia-Pacific Regional Conference

Narita Airport, during the 40th anniversary year of its opening, is hosting the 13th Airports Council International (ACI) Asia-Pacific Regional Assembly, Conference and Exhibition. The conference brings together airports and airlines from the Asia-Pacific region and beyond, to discuss problems facing the industry, recent trends, and future prospects.

The conference program includes a panel discussion among key persons in government and aviation on "Sustainable Tourism in Japan: Stimulating Economic Growth Through Tourism Development," a panel of airport executives discussing "The Airport Industry Beyond 2020," and other discussions and presentations by industry leaders and experts.

At the exhibition, many well-recognized makers and vendors of airport facilities and equipment will present their latest products and technologies.

For Narita Airport, hosting the ACI regional conference is an opportunity not only to contribute to the further development of aviation in the region, but also to exhibit leadership and project a stronger presence within the aviation industry.
