RB’s Chief Executive Officer Karam Chand said, “We are delighted to provide capital city to capital city connection with our direct Tokyo Narita services. RB first flew to Osaka, Japan in December 1994 and launched codeshare flights to Tokyo via Hong Kong in 2016. Our new route not only re-establishes a seamless connection between the two cities, adding Tokyo to the growing list of destinations is a very important decision for the company as we want to ensure each new route will provide RB with strong revenue growth, enhance the network and add significant value to Brunei’s economy.

The recent delivery of RB’s next generation single aisle aircraft, the A320 NEO, is a key enabler for RB to pursue route expansion given its superior economics. To-date, RB has received five brand new aircraft which has commenced services around the network. The aircraft with a configuration of 12 business class, 18 preferred economy and 120 economy furnished with premium leather seats has been very well received by our guests. The cabin features, especially the personal inflight entertainment has been applauded as “best in class” and five star for Regional Services. The last two A320 NEO aircraft will be delivered in November this year, making RB’s fleet one of the youngest in the world at an average age of just two years.

About Royal Brunei Airlines (RB):
