

JEJU air will launch a new route between Narita and Muan on 31 March 2019!

- Only Direct Service Linking Tokyo with South Korea's Southwest -

JEJU air has announced that it will launch a new Narita - Muan service on 31 March 2019. At present, there are no direct flights from Tokyo to the southwest region of South Korea so this new service will enable passengers to enjoy an uninterrupted journey to and from the area.

South Jeolla Province where Muan is located is known as the kitchen of South Korea where gourmets can enjoy the various flavors presented by Korean cuisine. Neighboring Gwangju is one of the seven designated metropolitan cities in South Korea. Home to the unparalleled natural beauty of Mudeungsan National Park as well as Chungjang-ro Street, the fashion center, it is a major tourism destination and the venue for events such as the World Kimchi Festival and the Gwangju Biennale, one of South Korea's largest international art exhibitions.

With the new Muan service, JEJU air will offer 4 South Korean destinations from Narita Airport alongside Seoul (Incheon), Busan and Daegu, and it will carry more passengers between Japan and South Korea than any other airline at Narita Airport.

Narita Airport has an ongoing commitment to expanding and improving its destination network for the benefit of our valued customers. Take advantage of Narita Airport's extensive network, now made even better with the JEJU air' Muan service.
