Hong Kong Airlines to Commence Double-daily Service on Narita - Hong Kong Route from 1 July 2016!

Hong Kong Airlines Returns to Narita After Three And a Half Years -

Tokyo, 15 April 2016: Narita International Airport Corporation (NAA) is delighted to announce that Hong Kong Airlines (IATA code: HX) will launch a service between Narita and Hong Kong as described below, commencing 1 July 2016.

HX is a Hong Kong-based full service carrier established in 2006. It previously serviced the route until January 2013 and is returning after an interval of three and a half years.

This double-daily service (2 flights a day) will take advantage of the robust demand in Hong Kong and the southern regions of China for travel to Japan and will also offer Japan resident passengers added convenience in the form of a greater range of flight options to suit their plans.

Narita Airport also believes that 105 flights a week (15 flights a day) on the Narita - Hong Kong route enriched with the addition of the HX service holds great promise in terms of greater convenience. With the new HX Hong Kong service, Narita Airport’s extensive aviation network is now more convenient than ever before.

Hong Kong Airlines Launches New Direct Flight Service to Tokyo Narita

[Hong Kong • 15 April 2016] Commencing on 1 July 2016, Hong Kong Airlines, an internationally-acclaimed full-service airline, will launch a twice daily service between Hong Kong and Narita Airport in Tokyo, Japan. Airbus A330 aircraft will be deployed on the route. Tokyo will be Hong Kong Airlines’ seventh destination in Japan, further strengthen the airline’s network in Japan and Asia, and provide Japan lovers with more travel options.

Mr. Li Dianchun, Chief Commercial Officer of Hong Kong Airlines said, “As the capital of Japan and one of the most important metropolitan cities in Asia, Tokyo has long been the favorite destination for Hong Kong people for both business and leisure travel. We are pleased to add Tokyo (Narita) to our growing Asian network, offering our passengers with a wider range of travel options, and strengthening Hong Kong’s position as one of the world's major aviation hubs.”

The new Tokyo route will be operated by A330-300 wide-body aircraft, with its business class cabin featuring 32 seats. Each seat can turn into a flatbed when fully reclines to 180 degree horizontally and measures an overall length of 6 feet 1 inch. As a full-service airline, passengers can enjoy the convenience of traveling with up to 20kg of checked baggage on free-of-charge basis.
